Notes for meeting with Nina about designing the website for the Tibetan Mastiff

Link to the recording(I forgot to click cloud recording so I uploaded it to google drive.):
https://drive.google.com/file/d/1iNzpZYpz_S84UUpvmtFAYLi-YuZbxCqB/view?usp=sharing

- Nina wanted to make something I like. If she needs more structure she'll let me know.
- Accessible to a larger audience (especially kids)
- Thematically bright
- Historical section shifts a bit in design to a vibe of uncovering historical documents
- A cute page a kid would find.
- Two options for color schemes: Either light and bright like a standard children's website or going more into historical color of tibet.
- Look at a bunch of informational websites targeted towards kids
- Multi panel page with a navigation bar unless you have another idea you'd prefer.
- Broken up into multiple pages where its introduction as a home page, then description, etc…
- Doesn't have to be a white background or boring.